

CORNERSTONE LAYING OF SUNSHINE HALL

Will Be Notable Occasion At Berea College Saturday—Morrow To Speak

Gov. Morrow will make the principal address at the cornerstone laying of the Sunshine Ballad Cabin, at Berea Saturday.

Lieut. Gov. Thruston Ballard will present the cabin to Berea College and it will be accepted on behalf of the college by Mrs. Anna Ernberg, head of the department of fireside industries. President Hutchins will give a short talk and the Girls' Glee Club will sing "My Old Kentucky Home." Many distinguished visitors from Louisville, Lexington and other cities will be present.

The construction of the Sunshine Ballad Cabin is the result of a conversation between Mr. Ballard and Mrs. Ernberg, in which the former pledged his salary as Lieutenant Governor of the state to the fireside industries department.

The check for $1,000 given by Ballard at the close of the 1920 legislative session is the first state money ever received by Berea College from Kentucky, according to a statement made by former President Frost. It soon became evident that the lieutenant's salary would not be sufficient to build such an addition to the fireside industries department as was needed, and consequently Mr. Ballard increased the amount to $5,000.

The new cabin will follow the plan of the main building, which is in every way unique. The outside will be a typical log cabin, but the inner walls will be of cedar. Floors are also of polished wood. In the main building classes in spinning, hand-weaving and basket making are to be conducted. The new cabin will have rooms and equipment for making the vegetable dyes used by mountain women for generations and restored by Mrs. Ernberg because of the beauty and permanence of color given to fabrics by the herb stains. There will also be two large class rooms in the new building.

The rapid growth of the fireside industries department is due partly to the increased demand all over the country for hand-woven fabrics, and partly to the fact that it gives the student a permanent means of livelihood. Through the department it is made possible for girls going back to their mountain homes to obtain hand-loom and continue the work they have begun in school.

Mrs. Ernberg has not only reproduced the historic patterns brought by the early settlers from England, but she has introduced a number of new patterns from Sweden. The construction of equipment necessary for dyeing the fabrics used in the college will simplify and make it possible to extend the work of the department.

CITY ACCEPTS GIFT OF MRS. IRVINE'S HOME

Council Unanimously Votes to Incur Obligations Necessary To Secure Park

The City of Richmond will accept the home place of the late Mrs. Elizabeth S. Irvine to use as a public park as provided in her will, which is now before the Madison circuit court.

Necessary action to this effect was taken at the meeting of the City Council Thursday night. A resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote, accepting the request, assuming the necessary obligations, and directing the City Attorney to take such legal action as may be necessary to secure the city's rights under Mrs. Irvine's will.

Attorney A. R. Burnam, representing Executor John W. Crooke was before the council on another matter at its meeting. He informed the members that the Kentucky State Medical Association, to which the home place "Irvine," was first left for hospital purposes, had failed to take any affirmative action of any sort indicating it desired to accept the request. Mr. Burnam said that it seemed very probable that income from Kansas City property intended by Mrs. Irvine to support such an institution would fail because of failure of the will to comply with the Missouri laws regarding last wills and testaments. He pointed out that the alternative bequest of the property to the City of Richmond, would then prevail, and it would be necessary for the City of Richmond to take some affirmative action indicating its intentions. Mr. Burnam said that he valued the property as reasonably worth $50,000.

It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of the councilmen that the city should not fail to grasp such an opportunity to secure a magnificent park, or playground, and the resolution above mentioned was passed without a dissenting voice.
